Important information regarding your results

UNIVERSITY OF PLYMOUTH

You have not yet passed all of your modules.
You must complete one or more referral assessments.

Please take a careful look at your transcript. There is a key to the codes used on the reverse.

A three-letter code beginning with R next to one or more elements is a referral code which means you must complete further assessment in that element for the corresponding module. An element is coursework, examination, practice, in-class test or pass/fail assessment. The other two letters indicate whether the referral is as a S same or N next attempt, and how the element will be reassessed.

Here are some examples:

RNC against coursework means that you have been referred in that coursework and must complete reassessment by coursework and this would be regarded as your next attempt.

RNC against examination means that you have been referred in the examination but must complete reassessment by coursework and this would be regarded as your next attempt.

Results of your referrals

Your referral results will be published after the Board in June. You should receive a new transcript and will also be able to view your referral results online. If you fail your referrals, you may be asked to repeat modules over the next academic year and would not then be expected to collect any award.

For more information about referral and for more detail to accompany the brief points below, please visit www.plymouth.ac.uk/results
