4. Distinctive Features of the Programme and the Student Experience

The programme has the following distinctive features:

- It draws from, and is based upon, considerable staff research expertise. The teaching team are all actively engaged in research relating to the MA, contributing to a range of publications in their respective areas of expertise.
- It is designed to appeal to a variety of audiences, including recent Plymouth graduates, teachers looking to enhance professional qualifications and those in the local community with a long-standing enthusiasm and passion for history.
- It will enable students to develop expertise in a variety of forms and periods of history, ranging from early modern religious, social and cultural history to twentieth-century military and political history.
- It has links, notably through the core module 'Public History', with local record offices and archives and in the process provides opportunities to develop expertise in the local and regional history of Plymouth and the south west.
- It will provide training and transferable skills, notably through the core modules of 'Key Debates' and 'Public History', that will be of value either in employment or in conducting further research, such as proceeding to registration for an MPhil/PhD.
- It will take place in a supportive pastoral environment (described by the external examiner for the predecessor MA programme as an excellent feature of History practice in successive annual reports).
- It provides flexibility for those wishing to achieve a PGCert or PGDip rather than completing the whole MA programme.

5. Relevant QAA Subject Benchmark Group(s)

N/A

There are currently no QAA M-level benchmarks for any Arts & Humanities subject (see <http://www.qaa.ac.uk/assuring-standards-and-quality/the-quality-code/subject-benchmark-statements/masters-degree-subjects>).

It is assumed that students will continue to develop, refine and apply the skills gained at Honours degree level in History or a related subject (see QAA Subject Benchmark statement for History <http://www.qaa.ac.uk/en/Publications/Documents/SBS-history-14.pdf>).

6. Programme Structure

Please note that the number and availability of option modules may vary from year to year (details of all modules are provided on the DMRs, supplied separately). The programme team will liaise with the Senior Administrator (Programmes) over the capping of option modules, with the intention that places will be reserved on such modules for level 7 students, with those students who have previously studied any given module at level 6 not being permitted to study these at level 7.

An optional module entitled 'Independent Research Project in History' gives flexibility to allow students in these circumstances (where they have studied a module at Level 6), or with timetabling issues, to study other topics, subject to staff availability.

The pattern for full-time mode will be as follows

Semester 1:

- Core module: Key Debates and Research Methods in History (MAHI700)
- One option module (from MAHI709, MAHI710, MAHI716, MAHI718, MAHI727, MAHI728, MAHI734, MAHI738)

Semester 2:

- Core module: Public History (MAHI701)
- One option module (from IRL715, MAHI704, MAHI706, MAHI718, MAHI721, MAHI723, MAHI726, MAHI729, MAHI733)

Summer (Semester 3):

MA History Dissertation (MAHI702)

Dissertation preparation begins in semester 1, with supervision starting semester 1 but primarily in semester 2 and with cut off point for tutorials in late July.

Each taught module is 30 Masters level credits. The Dissertation is 60 Masters level credits.

Mode of study

Please refer to the programme structure diagram (below) for full-time and part-time students.

Full-time study: lasts one year (12 months.) Students complete the requisite core, option and dissertation modules within this time.

Part-time study: lasts two years (24 months.) Students may take between 60 and 90 credits in year one.

MA History Programme Structure

An outline programme structure and features, modules, credit and award requirements are as follows:

The programme structure for 2021-22 is as follows:

MA History: full time route

Semester 1		Semester 2		Semester 3
MAHI700 Key Debates and Research Methods in History	Option module (from MAHI709- MAHI738)	MAHI701 Public History	Option module (from IRL715- MAHI733)	MAH702 MA History Dissertation

MAHI700 is mandatory in Semester 1; MAHI701 is mandatory in Semester 2. Students will take option modules drawn from MAHI704 – MAHI738 (and IRL715 from outside History), subject to availability. MAHI702 is mandatory in the Summer.

MA History: part-time route – Year 1

Semester 1	Semester 2
MAHI700 Key Debates and Research Methods in History	MAHI701 Public History

MAHI700 is mandatory in Semester 1; MAHI701 is mandatory in Semester 2.

MA History: part-time route – Year 2 (2022-23)

Semester 1	Semester 2	Semester 3
Option Module (from MAHI704-MAHI738)	Option Module (from MAHI704-MAHI738)	MAHI702 MA History Dissertation

* Option modules drawn from MAHI704–MAHI734 are subject to availability in 2022-23 (e.g., due to staff on sabbaticals). MAHI702 is mandatory in the Summer.

Option modules (all, except MAHI718, MAHI734 and MAHI738 co-taught with 3rd year BA modules) available in 2021–22 are as follows:

Semester 1

MAHI723 Key Debates in Modern Japanese History
MAHI726 Filth and the Victorians
MAHI729 Sea Power in History
MAHI733 Interwar Britain 1919-40

Each 'taught' core module is worth 30 credits and is delivered via two-hour weekly sessions. Optional modules are in three-hour weekly sessions in class (some of the options may be divided into a 2 hour seminar + 1 hour lecture), with an additional 1-hour weekly meeting with the module tutor. The exception is MAHI718, the Independent Research Project in History. As well as issuing individual module guides when first meeting groups, tutors for each module will specify the format of sessions they will be operating and will outline the amount and type of reading required on a week-by-week basis. The Programme Leader will organise an introductory session for MAHI718 and oversee this module.

MAHI702 History Dissertation is a 60-credit module, taught via individual supervision with a member of the programme team at times of mutual agreement. The Dissertation requires the submission of a project of 15–20,000 words in length, including footnotes and bibliography. For full-time students the dissertation must be completed by September in the year of first enrolment; for part-time students the dissertation must be completed by September in the second year following first enrolment.

7. Programme Aims
