

WELCOME TO PLYMOUTH UNIVERSITY

For more than 150 years we have played a central role in our city's life and it is with a sense of great pride to me that we continue to play such an integral role in our local community.

That is why I believe the Big Festival Weekend is such a special occasion, not just for the University but for the city as a whole.

I encourage you to look around our cutting-edge research facilities, such as the Marine Building, and see the outstanding work of some of our students at HOT'15, our Art and Design Degree Show.

I hope you will explore our campus through the range of family activities on offer and discover striking spaces such as the Drake's Place Gardens and Reservoir and our Immersive Vision Theatre.

And I hope you will immerse yourself in some of our cultural activities, which this weekend includes a concert by the Ten Tors Orchestra along with the Plymouth Respect Festival, which we are hosting for the second time in partnership with the Plymouth and Devon Racial Equality Council.

All in all this will hopefully provide just a taste of what we do.

I hope that you have an interesting and inspiring weekend with Plymouth University and feel free to come on in again - there are so many opportunities to engage with what we do here and we genuinely encourage you to do so.

Professor David Coslett
Interim Vice-Chancellor

DEAR FRIENDS

It gives me great pleasure to write these words for this year's Respect Festival. We are very excited to continue the great work that Respect has done over the last 16 years and now working in partnership with Plymouth University and the Big Festival Weekend.

As always with Respect, we endeavour to bring you great music, food and entertainment, and I feel that the line up of music we have programmed for you this year will get you dancing all day!

Make sure you explore the whole of the University campus and make the most of this wonderful vibrant weekend - if you have kids make sure you go through the rainbow! Take a tour of the galaxy, sample a cooking demo, practise some salsa moves, call in to the health zone and please support the Respect Café in the marquee.

There are information points around and a map in this programme, so don't be afraid to ask what's on and where.

This year the Plymouth and Devon Racial Equality Council (creators of the Plymouth Respect Festival), supported by Plymouth University, have worked with hundreds of children in schools and community centres all over the city to help raise awareness and understanding of difference, "All Different All Equal". These workshops have been facilitated with the kind assistance of Devon and Somerset Fire and Rescue Services and Devon and Cornwall Police. Why not get your school or group involved next year?

It is really important to us that we get your feedback, so please tweet us @plymouthrespect or Facebook us.

And finally a big thanks to the small team that have helped pull this weekend together, all our supporters for their kind donations and most importantly, to you for joining us.

Dan Thompson
Respect Festival Director

Thank you for coming along to our first Big Festival Weekend – it means a lot to the University, and to our partners at the Plymouth and Devon Racial Equality Council and Respect Festival. We hope you and your family have enjoyed the weekend, and please continue to engage with the campus via our year long programme of events and public engagement activities.

Every event relies on great support, and our partners across the region have been instrumental in helping us stage this first Big Festival Weekend. The generosity of our sponsors has meant we can provide you with a range of first class entertainment, food and family fun. The support of our existing partners has ensured that this event is a celebration not just for the University, but for the whole community as well. I would like to thank them all for supporting Plymouth University, and look forward to working in partnership with them again in the very near future.
