Important information regarding your results

You have not yet passed all of your modules. You must complete one or more referral assessments.

Please take a careful look at your transcript. There is a key to the codes used on the reverse.

A three-letter code beginning with R next to one or more elements is a referral code which means you must complete further assessment in that element for the corresponding module. An element is coursework, examination, practice, in-class test or pass/fail assessment. The other two letters indicate whether the referral is as a S same or N next attempt, and how the element will be reassessed.

Your referral will be regarded as:
- N – Next attempt
- S – Same attempt*

*This does not mean that the referral task will be the same as the original task.

Here are some examples:

RNC against coursework means that you have been referred in that coursework and must complete reassessment by coursework and this would be regarded as your next attempt.

RNC against examination means that you have been referred in the examination but must complete reassessment by coursework and this would be regarded as your next attempt.

This is what you need to do:

For some modules, there may be more than one task according to the element the task is to cover so please ensure that you complete the correct task(s). If you encounter any difficulties, you must contact your faculty office urgently. Your work must be submitted exactly in accordance with instructions on the website and we must receive all of your completed tasks by the formal deadline of 15.00hrs on Thursday 17 August 2017.

2) On Thursday 27 July 2017 – Referral examination timetable published
If you have any elements with a referral code ending in E, you must sit an exam for that module. Examinations take place from Monday 21 August 2017 until Friday 25 August 2017 inclusive and the timetable at www.plymouth.ac.uk/services/exams will list the venue, time & date of each. If you have modified examination provision, your timetable will differ and details will instead be emailed to your university email address. Before sitting your exams, it is extremely important that you familiarise yourself with information at the above website.

3) Friday 11 August 2017 – Deadline to request to repeat modules instead
You can request to repeat all of the modules you have yet to pass over the next academic year instead of completing referrals in them. It is very important that you understand the full implications of doing this and any costs involved. If you are considering doing this, please contact your faculty office before the deadline.

Results of your referrals
Your referral results will be published on Wednesday 13 September 2017. You should receive a new transcript and will also be able to view your referral results on the portal. If you fail your referrals, you may be asked to repeat modules over the next academic year and would not then be considered for progression to the next stage of your programme until the year after.
